

WESTERN ALLIES HAVE AGREED WITH SOVIET AUTHORITIES FOR MASS REPARATION PROGRAM

PARIS.—The western allies have agreed with Soviet military authorities on the greatest mass reparation program in history, involving the transfer of 2,500,000 tons of German goods to the Soviet Union, according to reports from Moscow.

Among those to be repatriated are 10,000 and 10,000 tons of machinery, prisoners of war, and from 10,000 to 20,000 tons of foodstuffs, clothing, and other necessities.

What any Canadians are involved was not learned immediately. The prisoners will be exchanged against the lives of German prisoners. Between the British, American and Russian forces.

Prior to the agreement the Russians insisted upon retaining prisoners through Canada, through which took many weeks.

The exchange of displaced persons and prisoners has been one of the main stumbling blocks to smooth relations between the Allies and the American and British forces.

Prisoner exchange and military camps have been established by Anglo-American authorities near the border of the Russian zone of control in Germany, and similar camps on the average 30 kilometers (18.6 miles) to the east, have been established by the Russians in the zone of the border.

The wounded and sick have first priority in the reparation program. They are being sent to the zone in France and Belgium and in the zone of the border.

They will be moved by train or truck, or by the Russian warships. It will be by rail.
